

August 14, 2006 09:00 AM Eastern Daylight Time

New Freewebs Tools and Features Put the 'We' in Web for World's Second-Largest Web Publisher; Import Tools, Profile Pages and Ratings & Comments Help Enhance Online Experience, Engage Website Visitors and Create a Single Web Presence for Millions of Users

SILVER SPRING, Md.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Aug. 14, 2006--Freewebs.com, the Internet's leading free do-it-yourself website publisher, today announced three new features to further simplify the process of building a website and enable its members to more actively communicate with their visitors. With these new features, Freewebs reaffirms its focus on creating simple-to-use site building tools that guarantee anyone can create a complete and professional looking website in minutes.

The new features, available today, include:

-- Import Tool: Allows users to further centralize their online presence without having to recreate content on Freewebs. Email contacts, blog entries and profiles from other leading Web properties can be imported to Freewebs by simply providing a username and password.

-- Profile Page: Gives users the option to publish their myWebs profile as a page on their website, making it accessible and searchable to all Freewebs visitors.

-- Ratings & Comments: Using a simple widget, users can now get direct feedback from their visitors on everything from their entire site to a single picture to movies, music, recipes and more.

"Freewebs continues to invest in creating the tools necessary for our members to simply create their Web presence, and share their passions with the world"

"Freewebs continues to invest in creating the tools necessary for our members to simply create their Web presence, and share their passions with the world," said Haroon Mokhtarzada, co-founder and CEO of Freewebs. "Other services on the Web that talk about 'My' and 'You' are very narrowly focused. Freewebs will keep focusing on giving its users the ability to create a complete, high-quality website. By continuing to add features which foster two-way communication between visitors and web creators, we will work to ensure the 'We' remains in Web."

The new tools and features are available immediately to Freewebs members. To create a free, complete and high-quality website, and to use these tools and features first-hand, visit www.freewebs.com.

About Freewebs

For everyone with an Internet connection and something to share, Freewebs.com is the free, do-it-yourself website builder that guarantees anyone can easily create and share a complete, high-quality website through its versatile web publishing platform. Today, more than 10 million individuals, groups, organizations and small businesses worldwide use Freewebs to create and host comprehensive websites that include blogs, photos, videos, music, e-commerce and more. Founded in 2001, Freewebs is privately held and based in Silver Spring, MD.

Contacts

fama PR

Mike Reilly, 617-758-4154

mike@famapr.com

