TLDH within the .购物 registry for the registration of .购物 domains in the Chinese language.

TLDH's Chinese IDN implementation has a feature that mitigates homographic attacks due to Han variants by blocking a name from being registered if a similar name is already registered. The mechanism by which this works is that every registered domain name has a computed canonical string associated with it. This canonical string is only used internally to block similar names from being registered.

In addition to the blocking mechanism, bundling is also implemented for the Chinese language. If registration is successful, the requested domain name is always entered into the database. In addition, if the all-traditional or all-simplified variants of the requested domain is requested, they are also entered into the registry database.
Therefore, up to three domain names may be associated with a given registration using the "zh" language tag.

The table below lists the characters allowed for registration under the "zh" language tag in the first column. The second column shows the canonical codepoint corresponding to the first column. The third column lists the other variants that also maps to the same canonical character in the second column.

This table is in compliance with the ICANN Guidelines for the Implementation of Internationalized Domain Names and is intended for publication in the IANA IDN Character Table Registry.
