1&1 Mail&Media's application for the .mail TLD has been based on exclusive use of the TLD in creating new email address possibilities within our freemail and premium-mail businesses. 1&1 Mail&Media however recognizes a legitimate general public interest in the .mail TLD and the availability of domain names within the .mail space to any potential registrant. Therefore, should 1&1 Mail&Media's application be successful, it is willing to reevaluate its registration policies and therefore allow any ICANN Compliant registrar to register .mail domain names on behalf of registrants. In doing so 1&1 Mail&Media would not modify its own business model of utilizing the domain names for email address creation, but would simply additionally allow open registration of domain names in compliance with all ICANN New gTLD Registration Policies.
